GEOGRAPHICAL TABULATION OF BIOGRAPHEES — NON-CURRENT DATA — NECROLOGY

To serve those desiring a geographical tabulation of the biographees whose data are published or referred to in this Edition (Volume 29) of WHO'S WHO, such a tabulation, an index to NON-CURRENT Listings (since and including Volume 27), and a Necrology (since and including Volume 27), are separately published in a self-cover unit (including an index to the MONTHLY SUPPLEMENT for 1951-55, inclusive) of 140 pages (7⅜ x 10⅜), which is available, until the printing is exhausted, at a nominal charge ($2.25 postpaid) based on mechanical production costs alone, from the Service Department, Room 200, Marquis Publications Building, Chicago-11, Illinois, USA.

The geographical tabulation lists biographees alphabetically, grouped according to states (or countries) and localities. Business or professional addresses control, if available. Those entered without addresses, and transients, are arranged separately (alphabetically). WHO'S WHO itself being self-indexing, page numbers are not utilized.

Space limitations obviously require that the Editors select to be published or referred to in each successive printing the data of those WHO'S WHO biographees their experience indicates most likely to be sought by reference consultants during the specific biennium dating an edition. No other factor is normally involved in the non-current status to which a biographee's data may as a result be transferred. That status naturally may be intermittant; it carries no significance beyond the Editor's judgement as to comparative current reference incidence; and many of the data involved are in fact being published currently in Marquis regional biographical dictionaries. The Editor's judgement, moreover, is admittedly fallible, although fortunately the MONTHLY SUPPLEMENT makes corrections of it possible before a new printing of WHO'S WHO occurs. The data of any living individual whose status as a WHO'S WHO biographee has been discontinued for reasons considered sufficient by the Editors, do not, it should be noted, move into this non-current status, and are not referred to under "Non-Current Listings" or elsewhere. It follows that normally data at the moment in the non-current status are, except for this measure of comparative current reference interest, which the Editors must apply to the best of their abilities, in exactly the same relationship to the basic selective standards, established for WHO'S WHO, for gauging noteworthy attainment (summarized on page 2), as those appearing in this latest printing, and that naturally the individuals involved are in full measure WHO'S WHO biographees. Accordingly, indices to these data are periodically made available to reference consultants to facilitate access to the biographies of all living WHO'S WHO-listed distinguished Americans. The current printing of this index, published with the geographical tabulation referred to above, lists data involved in the compilation of both this (Volume 29) and the immediately preceeding Editions (Volumes 27 and 28).

Volumes I and II of WHO WAS WHO provide the last-published biographies-in-brief of biographees sketched in the preceding 26 biennial volumes of WHO'S WHO and known by the Editors to be deceased. The succeeding decadal volumes of WHO WAS WHO will similarly collate such sketches from later printings of WHO'S WHO. The current Necrology, also published with the geographical tabulation referred to above, lists biographees coming to the Editor's attention as deceased during the compilation of this printing (Volume 29), and is accompanied by a corresponding Necrology for the preceding Editions (Volumes 27 and 28).

VOCATIONAL-GEOGRAPHICAL ANALYSIS (42,537 "WHO'S WHO" BIOGRAPHEES) — INDEX TO ALL DATA OF "WHO'S WHO" BIOGRAPHEES NON-CURRENT FROM VOLUME 1 TO VOLUME 29 (INCLUSIVE)

A 1[illegible]-page (7⅝ x 10¾) board-bound publication containing a tabulation of 42,537 WHO'S WHO biographees arranged geographically and coded by vocations (those indicated to be their principal ones by the initial wordings of their Volume 26 sketches) and an index to the non-current data of over 22,000 living WHO'S WHO biographees (Volume 1 through Volume 26) is now available ($3.75 postpaid) from the Service Department (address above). Used in conjunction, this publication and the self-cover adjunct to WHO'S WHO described at the top of this page, make reference convenient to all data (of more than 37,000 WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA biographees) at any time non-current since the issuance of the first printing in the last century, while the unique vocational-geographical tabulation (contained in the former) in addition provides frequently needed answers to questions such as "Who are nearby who are in WHO'W WHO, and what do they do?"; "Who in that profession [or line of business] are located there?" The similar page size of the two publications makes practicable shelving them together as a unit.

INDEX TO THE "MONTHLY SUPPLEMENT" FROM FIRST ISSUANCE THROUGH 1950

A 48-page (7⅝ x 10¾) board-bound twelve-year index to the MONTHLY SUPPLEMENT, from the first issue (for December, 1939), through and including that for December, 1950, now provides ready page and issue reference to over 30,000 biographies-in-brief — covering thousands of hard-to-find names — published in the first 133 issues of it. This index may be obtained ($2.75 postpaid) through the Service Department, (address above). Used in conjunction with the self-cover adjunct to this printing (Volume 29) of WHO'S WHO described at the top of this page, this index supplies convenient reference to all data published in the SUPPLEMENT since its establishment (through, and including, the issue for December of 1955), in connection with over 48,000 sketches. The similar page size of the two publications makes practicable shelving as a unit, by placing the self-cover 5-year index inside the hard-cover index covering the preceding 12 years. The MONTHLY SUPPLEMENT has been available since December of 1939. Bridging the two-year interval between the issuances of WHO'S WHO, it provides timeliness without necessitating annually the expense of a definitive volume. Together WHO'S WHO and the MONTHLY SUPPLEMENT give an extraordinarily complete coverage of names both permanently and currently in the public eye.

AMERICANS — OVER 160,000 — NOTEWORTHY SINCE CIVIL WAR DAYS

The indices described on this page make practicable referral to biographies-in-brief of more than 160,000 American men and women considered either transitorily or lastingly noteworthy by Marquis Editors. This store of American biography is unique on two scores: (1) selection for inclusion in it has been continuous for over more than half a century and under the same publishing house; (2) it is now being added to, literally month-by-month, by a non-profit foundation established to assure it permanence under the selective standards responsible for the standing of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA. Moreover, as the Marquis Library of Continuous American Biography, this store of data, in its present scope, has recently been made available at practically nominal cost (approximately $1.45 a month) to all interested in having to hand, always down to date, American biography since the middle of the last century. This Library — certainly distinctive, if indeed not unique — is described in a four-page leaflet which may be secured, and also pricing and similar details, from the Service Department (address above).

THE STANDARDS CONTROLLING LISTING IN "WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA"

Except for names which are included in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA for one or more of the arbitrary reasons designated below, the aim is to include the names, not necessarily of the best, but rather of the best known, men and women in all lines of useful and reputable achievement—names much in the public eye, not locally, but generally. The standards of admission divide the eligible into two classes: (1) those selected on account of special prominence in creditable lines of effort, making them the subjects of extensive interest, inquiry or discussion; and (2) those included arbitrarily on account of position—civil, military, naval, religious, educational, corporate or organizational.

CLASS ONE

The first of these two classes comprises persons who have accomplished some conspicuous achievement—something out of the ordinary, so to speak—something which distinguishes them from the vast majority of their contemporaries. This class is confined to those so identified with American affairs as to be subject to wide inquiry or discussion. Since selection is entirely guided by reference interest thus delimited, individual details of residence and the like are not determinative; while, additionally, in the compilative routine "American" does not apply only to those technically Americans because of allegiance to one of the twenty-one Republics of America, but as well to citizens of Canada and the other associated or contiguous Pan American areas, and as well those overseas, who are, in the Editors' estimation, subject to American reference interest. Names frequently appear of those who are broadly prominent in some special field, but who are little known in their own communities. The man of significant achievement may be scarcely known in the particular locality in which he lives. He is often a person whose work is better known than himself, and it is pertinent information concerning such an individual that WHO'S WHO aims to gather and disseminate.

ARBITRARY CLASS

The arbitrary class embraces without regard to notability or prominence in any other respect, the following from, or located in, the United States of America: All members of the Congress; members of the Cabinet; Federal judges; governors of States, Territories and island possessions; attorneys general of the various States; judges of State and Territorial Courts of the highest appellate jurisdiction; ambassadors and ministers plenipotentiary, and ambassadors and ministers accredited to this country; selected Federal Department heads; consuls general or consuls at important posts abroad; heads of the larger universities and colleges; living authors of books possessing more than ephemeral interest or value —books which have received a considerable degree of recognition by the general public or which have attained wide usage by special groups or classes, such as educational groups, scientific groups, literary groups, and the like; officers on active duty of the Army, Air Forces, and Marine Corps above the rank of colonel, and of the Navy above the rank of captain; heads of the leading societies devoted to philanthropic, educational and scientific aims; members of the National Academy of Sciences, the National Academy of Design, the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the National Institute of Arts and Letters; bishops in chief ecclesiastics of the larger religious denominations; principals of national or international businesses capitalized at or above a certain figure or of the highest commercial "rating"; and others likewise chosen because of incumbency, authorship, or membership. To be sure, the majority of these arbitrary listees would be admitted without hesitation because of other distinctions.

AND ALSO, "STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN"

Several court decisions and certain cease and desist orders handed down by The Federal Trade Commission — on guard in the interest of the consumer and as well the fairly-competing enterprise — in effect make most appropriate adding "stop, look and listen" to the important admonitory notice opposite page five. One of these, the Commission's Order Number 5108, is in part officially summarized as follows:

"An order prohibiting use of the term 'Who's Who' in the title of any of their biographical reference books has been issued by The Federal Trade Commission against . . . Among the respondents' publications are those entitled Who's Who in the Western Hemisphere, Who's Who in the Clergy, Who's Who in Law, and Who's Who Among Physicians and Surgeons. The Commission finds that through use of the term 'Who's Who' in the titles the respondents represented falsely that the books were compiled and published by the A. N. Marquis Co., Chicago, publisher of the well-known WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA; that the respondents are connected with such publisher and that their books have been edited and compiled with the same accuracy, reliability and selectivity as that used in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA."

And a Federal District Court decision reads in part:

"ADJUDGED that the words 'Who's Who' have acquired a secondary meaning and are a mark by which publications of the plaintiffs [The A. N. Marquis Company] are distinguished from all other publications of the same class."

AN IMPORTANT NOTICE*

This work, like all the standard Marquis biographical reference publications, is not merely an alphabetical arrangement of biographical data. And it is not a mere compilation of the names of those responding to mailings to lists obtainable from mailing-list concerns and other sources. When there is no rigorous enforcement of a selective standard which assures inclusion of the listings necessary to coverage of basic reference requirements, no reference standing, completeness, or worth can result.

Its compilation has been so patterned that this work will serve usefully and effectively in private or public libraries as a sound biographical reference tool. Biographees have been painstakingly searched out who fall under the unique measures of reference incidence assembled at large expense by the A. N. Marquis Company to meet its standards for selection resulting from over a half century of biographical reference experience.

Exploitation in any manner whatsoever of the names herein, thus selected and under which the biographical sketches appear alphabetically, is beyond the fair uses intended in the sale of the work, and in certain obvious circumstances, if damage follows to the publisher from a misappropriation of his time and expense expended in their selection, may bring legal action.

In respect to those selected for inclusion in the work, the great majority of whom have by making biographical data available cooperated in assuring the completeness vital to actual reference use, this notice is directed toward fending off on their behalf use of their names as canvassing and mailing lists; in respect to others, its purpose is obvious.

*See "And also, 'Stop, Look and Listen' " (page 2).

THE MARQUIS LIBRARY OF CONTINUOUS AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY

WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA aims to give brief, crisp personal sketches of those whose positions or achievements bring them under the admission standards summarized on page two. It is thoroughly revised, brought down to date, and reissued biennially in bound form — the next such edition (Vol. 30) will be for the years 1958-59 and will be issued in 1958. Integral with this biennial, bound definitive issuance, is the MONTHLY SUPPLEMENT, which on the one hand provides the reference user with currency, and on the other, enables him to avoid the expense of purchasing definitive volumes annually, and yet to have at hand many more listings than would otherwise be available to him. In addition, WHO WAS WHO makes conveniently available for handy reference use the last-published sketches of over 33,000 deceased WHO'S WHO biographees. These three provide a biographical library unique on the scores of scope and compactness, and as well because of continuous compilation under standards uniformly applied since the Nineteenth Century: the MARQUIS LIBRARY OF CONTINUOUS AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY.

FIRST EDITION, VOL. I (1899-1900), 827 pages, 8,602 sketches.

SECOND EDITION, VOL. II (1901-02), 1,300 pages, 11,551 sketches.

A Letter to Henry Ford...

July 30, 1863-April 7, 1947. (Last publication of WHO'S WHO sketch, Volume 24, Page 787. Now in print in WHO WAS WHO, Volume II, page 193.)

Dear Mr. Ford:

The Foundation has increased its giving to liberal-arts-and-sciences private colleges and universities by $260 million to $310 million — medical schools and hospitals are given, also, $90 million and $200 million, respectively.

The $310-million grant is the largest benefaction ever made from privately-controlled funds to the nation's privately-controlled liberal-arts-and-sciences institutions of higher education which cannot control today's higher costs by taking more from the taxpayers, as the publicly-controlled institutions can (and do).

Over and above the direct assistance this outstanding grant will give the 615 financially hard-pressed private colleges and universities which are the specific recipients, I believe that the attention its size has automatically attracted will prove to be exactly what is needed to awaken the nation to the necessity of saving our private liberal-arts-and-sciences colleges and universities; that this awakening will at long last bring about what many of us have been earnestly fighting for during recent years — preservation of them as independent institutions

. . . and feeling this truly great achievement, vitally important to our country, has been brought closer to realization by the Ford grants, I have been thinking of you

. . . of Edsel, Cameron, Liebold, Crowther

. . . of Edsel coming to the luncheon table at the Dearborn offices one summer noon in 1929 to remark the big boom was over — by telephoning around to the presidents of other automobile manufacturers he had discovered a backing up of Ford sales at the dealer level to be typical . . . When in New York a few days later I mentioned the incident to several heads of big brokerage houses doing a record business, only to be laughed at . . . one of them with chagrin telephoned me later in the year to recall his derision of Edsel's opinion and to add that he was seeing family fortunes, built up over generations, wiped out in minutes

— you had Edsel give a detailed account of his information . . . and then you directed that key dealers be called to Detroit to talk with you, and pointed out that Ford had, under your practice of keeping very large deposits in carefully selected banks subject to immediate withdrawal, exceptional cash resources available for any emergency . . . to me you pointed out that I had happened to witness a good example of the need for educating first to think, and only secondarily to practice some trade or profession proficiently.

. . . of you showing Dearborn Village just being started, driving about in a Model T

— you had put in charge a young man from the training group for mechanics in which you were so interested . . . you pointed out he was anything but an expert on the Americana for which hundreds of thousands were being spent, but that you had noticed he could think; that you would give a hundred, however skilled in how-to-do-it, for one of his kind; that a sound liberal education would make him a top executive, or a top scientist if he wanted to go on to the sciences.

. . . of the time Couzens suddenly withdrew an article I'd titled "What I Learned from Henry Ford," even after he had approved publication of it and I had billboard sheets announcing it ready and distributed throughout the country for going up . . . I sent Crowther to Couzens; he telephoned me Couzens' reason was that you would be offended by the article . . . since there was nothing in the article which I felt would offend you, I asked Crowther to see you, predicting you would like the article . . . Crowther had been exposed to the criticism of the Ford business rather prevalent at that time in certain New York financial groups, and at first demurred at even calling on you; when he finally agreed, he went to your office with a chip on his shoulder; you were at home, and asked your office to have Crowther come there; Crowther declined, telling your office to telephone you he had not come on a personal matter, and would therefore see you in your office; I imagine your staff carried out Crowther's suggestion literally and with gleeful anticipation of his being "told off," but, to their surprise — and his, he later admitted to me — you simply remarked you intended to come to the office later anyway, and would now instead come at once. That evening, after a long talk with you . . . the Couzens article was, incidentally, disposed of in a few minutes — as I expected, you liked it, said so, and the next day Couzens reauthorized publication of it . . . Crowther telephoned me he had at last met — he had worked with most of the business leaders of that day — a business man he could rate "tops," and withdrew, completely and without reservation, his second-handed opinion of you based on the New York viewpoints to which he had been exposed . . . Crowther's long associationship with you followed, and your famous biography translated into almost every living language.

— Crowther and I of course discussed your viewpoints late into many nights, while the biography was in preparation. Who's Who has since its founding been deeply interested in private institutions of higher education. We were then planning for the Who's Who Citations for exceptional giving to these colleges and universities, and searching for a basis that would recognize giving, not according to the size of the gift in dollars and cents, but according to the proportion of a gift to the assets of the institution benefited — we later worked out such a basis, and the Citations are by now credited with doing a good job of stimulating giving to private colleges and institutions. Crowther reported to me you liked the idea; that you felt privately-controlled colleges and institutions as vital to the nation as privately-controlled businesses; and that you considered support of them anything but charity — your views on charity had been subject to considerable discussion currently.

These are, of course, not the only thoughts of you brought to me by the announcement the Foundation is giving millions to the country's private liberal-arts-and-sciences colleges and universities on a record scale. I pick them to list here for two reasons — one is that they seem to me to connect up more or less directly with both the Foundation's limitation of the grants to private institutions and the first sentence of a paragraph in its official notification to recipients: "From the beginning the emphasis of the College Grants Program has been on the liberal arts and sciences"; the second is that they especially interested the members of our Editorial Board during a general discussion of the grants — in fact, suggested to them the decision which causes me to write this.

Preface . . .

HOW DO YOU GET INTO "WHO'S WHO"? DO YOU STAY IN FOREVER ONCE YOU GET IN? WHEN IN, WILL ANYTHING YOU WANT BE INCLUDED IN YOUR LISTING?

"Institutions, if they be actual and not merely nominal, will be found, I think, to possess some element, some simple pregnant aspect, easily comprehensible to the popular imagination, which sets them off from other members of their class and gives them special status. . . . And WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, though a gospel, a heresy, and a raging polemic in one, and thus potentially suspect, is at the same time a Dun, a Bradstreet, a social register, and a hall of fame, all merged into a grand consolidated national glory highway, and thus unique in the eyes of the American people . . ."

— James M. Cain (p. 391)

". . . here in this country no more distinctive recognition can come to an undertaking than to have it generally referred to as an American institution. Run over in your mind those so considered; you will find their number surprisingly small, and the chances are heavily odds–on that you will have included the famous big red book WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA."

— Congressman Emanuel Celler (p. 442)

Quite naturally, one of the questions most frequently asked the editors of WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA is: "How do you get into WHO'S WHO*?"*

It's answered readily enough by referring to the "Standards Controlling Listing in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA" (given on page 2). Or by merely citing the basic principle stated in the fourth paragraph below, and allowing the questioner to amplify on it in any detail he personally feels necessary.

However, neither of these two ways of answering that question reaches the core, nor is indicative of the extensive processing involved in applying either the basic principle or the standards — which are, themselves, an application . . . and an amplification . . . of the principle.

This basic principle is, in fact, an application of an even more basic — and far more fundamental — principle: that, in a democratic society, our lives are governed — insofar as they must be governed — by sets of rules, called laws, agreed upon by the majority, and not by the whims or desires of individuals or groups of individuals.

Thus . . . to make the application specific to WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA . . . ever since its founding in the Nineteenth Century by Albert Nelson Marquis — in truth, increasingly so as experience brought familiarity with the problems involved — the selection of those to be listed has been based upon sets of rules, themselves founded upon this basic principle:

> WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA shall endeavor to list those individuals who are of current national reference interest and inquiry either because of meritorious achievement in some reputable field of endeavor or because of positions they hold.

No more than inspection of the standards on page 2 is required to demonstrate how these standards are an application — and amplification — of this basic principle. They, and the rules which guide and control the Editors using them, together form a "Constitution" and a "Bill of Rights" for WHO'S WHO which, so long as adhered to, rule out selections for inclusion based upon individual whim or desire. And that they have been adhered to, the Editors believe to be proved by the standing WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA has attained since its establishment in the last century. Without this adherence, that internationally acknowledged standing would not be a fact.

It is by strict adherence for over half a century to these self-imposed "laws" and the sound applications of them outlined below and by — to that end — putting aside all personal feelings of their own and of would-be or would-not-be biographees, that the Editors have been able to bring to WHO'S WHO general recognition . . . as typically cited by Congressman Emmanuel Celler (D. NY) (page 442) and James M. Cain, the author (page 391) . . . as an American institution.

Many have been the times the Editors have refused to list someone who wanted in, or listed someone who did not want in, or included individuals for whom they did not have particularly high regard themselves, for the basic reason that those standards on page 2, reflecting that principle cited above, clearly indicated that the individual in question should be listed because of current subjectivity to national reference interest.

The detailed applications and amplifications of the standards which are necessary to routine operation under them reflect the fact that the underlying principle has two broad segments.

The first segment of the principle — "Class One" of the standards is based on it — has to do with those subject to inquiry nationally due to conspicuous achievement in some reputable field of endeavor. In practice, the Editors automatically eliminate the merely notorious, those of only transitory interest, and the notable solely because of physical dexterity or prowess.

In "Class One" are those whose achievement distinguishes them from the vast majority of their contemporaries and makes them subject to extensive inquiry or discussion, either generally, or widely in their particular lines of endeavor. Into this segment may fall the noteworthy man or woman of an art, a science, a line of business, or of any other of the many fields of contemporary endeavor. Whether or not this notable individual is technically "American" because of residence or citizenship is not material — if a necessary degree of reference interest is considered to exist in this country, and the achievement is meritorious, that is sufficient.

Furthermore, an individual's prominence in his own community is not necessarily a criterion. Names frequently appear in WHO'S WHO of those who are broadly prominent in some special field, but who are little known "at home." The man of great achievement may often be almost a stranger in the locality in which he lives; he is often a person whose work is better known than himself, and it is pertinent information concerning such an individual that WHO'S WHO aims to gather and to disseminate.

The second segment of the selective methods for applying the standards listed on page 2 provides for biographees selected because of the positions they hold — the "Arbitrary Class." In these instances the incumbencies are determinative, not the individuals who become incumbents, although normally personal attainments of the incumbents would justify inclusion in WHO'S WHO irrespective of the qualifying positions. In short, getting certain positions which the Editors' experience shows expose the holders of them to general reference interest, automatically puts you into WHO'S WHO even if you've done nothing else to rate it!

It is basically, in other words, the position which is determinative in respect to these listings, and when that position is taken by another it follows that the new incumbent automatically becomes eligible for listing, and the retiring incumbent for transference to a non-current status, unless other attainments or distinctions — as they very often do — require retention of his listing in an active status under "Class One."

It also follows that whether the individual biographee found to qualify within either of the two segments — "Class One" and the "Arbitrary Class" — wants to be listed, or does not want to be, or even if the Editors personally may not want him to be, he nevertheless must be listed if the rules — the "law" — call for his listing, and if the Editors rate him unquestionably subject to national reference inquiry. If he — or his position — is considered by them to be "border-line" in respect to being sufficiently subject to national interest to require listing, he may or may not be arbitrarily listed at their discretion.

But when the Editors rate a qualifying biographee essential because of his obvious subjectivity to national reference inquiry, and he refuses to cooperate in supplying personal data to them, they automatically order special research — as extensive as may be necessary — that will obtain the data they require. Then they, after such verification as they have an opportunity to make, will publish these data, but use a typographic indicator to show that the published information has not been personally supplied or checked by the man or woman who elected not to cooperate to assure mutually advantageous accuracy to personal information to be — for all time — available at libraries and reference centers throughout the world.

So, obviously, the degree of subjectivity to reference interest is the one controlling criterion for "getting into WHO'S WHO." No other consideration, financial or otherwise, is decisive, or has ever been in the half-century and more WHO'S WHO has been published. Whether or not a biographee, or the organization with which he is associated, wants, or does not want, to subscribe to WHO'S WHO makes no difference whatsoever — the degree of subjectivity to reference interest, and that alone, determines selection for listing in WHO'S WHO.

The determined questioner may wish to go one step further, however. He may be satisfied with the basic principle, and the standards, and the factor of no obligation, but he still wants to know: "How do you do it?"

A complete answer would enter into operational details of interest only to reference technicians and other publishers. Suffice it to explain here that the "how" is based on two essentials: continuous compilation, which is outlined on page 3199, and amplification of the standards into an extensive set of "criteria for consideration."

The criteria, set up for practically every field of human endeavor, "carry down" the standards on page 2 to tens of thousands of specific applications. These "criteria for consideration" are designed to assure that every "new name" which properly should come to the Editors' attention, whether it be in the "Arbitrary Class" or in "Class One," does receive their notice some time during the biennium separating editions of WHO'S WHO.

In the case of the "Arbitrary Class," a relatively simple operation is involved in most instances, for the Editors are dealing with clear-cut categories of positions for which up-to-date records of new incumbents are available. But for "Class One" listings the number of names brought to the Editors' attention by the "criteria for consideration" must be supplemented by continual scanning of newspapers and magazines, and, when the Editors find it necessary, by soliciting recommendations from a rather extensive list of "Advisory Editors" — friends of WHO'S WHO in all walks of life who, either upon request, or often voluntarily, recommend to the Editors, from the fields with which they are most familiar, individuals they believe sufficiently outstanding to rate consideration.

The "criteria for consideration" are by no means constant for any given field of activity, but must of necessity be open to continual revision. For instance, those for science have been extensively revised of recent years to provide adequately for the new specialties of atomics and nucleonics, while the impact of TV has been felt upon the criteria for the fields of entertainment, of communications, and, to a lesser degree, commerce and industry.

That is "how you get into WHO'S WHO." It is the only way. Many treatises, articles, and studies have been written about WHO'S WHO and those who have been selected over the decades for listing — typical ones are cited in the box below. For simply by rigorously, undeviatingly applying this concept WHO'S WHO has attracted the types of studies and analyses continually being made of all our national institutions.

There is, however, another compilative aspect which has to be considered if the answer to "How do you get into WHO'S WHO" is to be rounded out completely until it covers: "Do you stay in WHO'S WHO forever once you get in?", and "When you get in WHO'S WHO will anything you want printed about yourself be included in it?"

The answers to these two questions bring up this premise: WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, to do its job effectively, must be held carefully within its scope as a biographical dictionary supplying data currently of general national reference inquiry and concerning those at the moment subject to such inquiry.

It cannot print all the data historians, researchers and biographers may find useful and helpful in connection with Americans meritoriously exposed to reference inquiry. It cannot continuously keep in print all the data having to do with every living American who has been exposed to general, national reference inquiry at one time or another since the preceding century; nor career and familial sketches of notable deceased Americans.

Those are services obvious practicalities rule out for WHO'S WHO, a reference work under continuous revision for periodic issuance, to the end that it can effectively do the job of supplying biographical data subject currently to general, national reference interest and having to do with living Americans themselves exposed at the moment to such inquiry. Yet they are services essential to our needed store of American biography, and so that providing them could proceed in a practical way, all that WHO'S WHO could supply . . . in data, in facilities, in dollars . . . was formally dedicated almost two years ago to the Library of American Biography, and MARQUIS-WHO'S WHO . . . owning the Marquis publications, including WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA . . . was created early in 1954 to make this Library its end purpose.

The first in-print work under this endeavor to establish and maintain a store of truly representative American achievement, recorded in the life records of those who did the achieving, is the unique MARQUIS LIBRARY OF CONTINUOUS AMERICAN BIOGRAPHY, some details of which will be found on page 1 (the final paragraph).

As the direct result of these arrangements, our nationally needed store of representative biography since the Civil War period stands today as follows:

The familial and career data of over 335,000 meticulously selected Americans are of record in print, of whom 38,000 are known to be deceased. The data of nearly 185,000 additional Americans are by-name listed, and compiled under a standardized compilative format.

Each of these Americans has been chosen under the principle and the standards described above — continuously, since the latter part of the last century. Exactly the same methods are being applied to carrying forward, week in and week out, the selection of additional noteworthy Americans, and making their familial and career data permanently of record.

The system described is not infallible, and there will always be inclusions — and omissions — and de-listings — open to legitimate question. But it is a system which permits the selection and inclusion of those indicated by it to be of authentic current national reference interest in a manner as free as is humanly possible from outside influences, monetary, personal, familial, or of any other type whatsoever.

It is, the Editors firmly believe, a truly democratic system, drawing no lines because of race, creed, color, financial standing, or family background. That it is a successful system is perhaps best evidenced by the fact that over a period of more than 30 years the ratio of WHO'S WHO biographees to the national population has held at from 3 in 12,000 to 3 in 10,000 — for, the Editors believe, as grows America, so grows WHO'S WHO — no more, no less.

GATEWAY TO HOPE AND OPPORTUNITY ACCESS TO VISTAS GONE AND STILL TO BE

That decision is to authorize the Citation reproduced on this page. Under the limitations we arbitrarily set up when establishing the Citations for Exceptional Educational Philanthropy, foundations are prescribed as recipients because their gifts are normally not made to a single institution. Therefore, the Editors could not, although they naturally wanted to, cite the Foundation itself. But they are free to cite individuals whenever they consider doing so appropriate. When the discussion of the grants brought out, among others, the incidents I have included here, they acted to cite you.

Their decision is I am sure a happy, completely justifiable, one. I hope the Citation itself will be wanted by your namesake grandson — as the Foundation's chairman he effectively announced the grants nationally over television.

That each of the recipients of grants from the Foundation would consider custody of it an important privilege, goes without the saying — and Colgate, awarded a grant of $765,200, perhaps has a special status among them, for I notice from your last-published Who's Who sketch — now under our editorial routine printed in Volume II of Who Was Who — that you received an honorary degree from its faculty. Since under any circumstances only one of the 615 could have custody of the Citation itself, I am having a lithographic reproduction of it sent to each of them.

Knowing that of my thoughts of you on reading the Foundation's announcement, the most interesting to you ★ are not those singled out above,

Wheeler Sammons

★Perhaps one of these is my recollection of once being assured — I had stopped in at "headquarters" to suggest an article by you, only to find you out of town — that, since you in actuality were merely only scenery, any article about Ford operations should of course be by the man really directing them . . . who, on being introduced (Was the name Hawkins?), proceeded to show me about, with gestures . . . he was, as a matter of fact, apparently technically top drawer, but he obviously lacked the fundamentals of straight thinking that go with education at every good private liberal-arts-and-sciences college and are inborn, or acquired, "musts" for ranking executives . . . even thinking through to why I left without asking him for an article was beyond him . . . as you suggested, following being back in Detroit long enough to dispose of him.

ALPHABETIC PRACTICES

Names are arranged alphabetically according to the surnames, and under identical surnames according to the first given name. If both surname and first given name are identical, names are arranged alphabetically according to the second given name. Where full names are identical, they are arranged in order of age—those of the elder being put first.

Surnames beginning with De, Des, Du, etc., however capitalized or spaced, are recorded with the prefix preceding the surname and arranged alphabetically under the letter D.

Surnames beginning with Mac are arranged alphabetically under M. This likewise holds for names beginning with Mc; that is, all names beginning Mc will be found in alphabetical order after those beginning Mac.

Surnames beginning with St. (Saint) are all arranged before names beginning Sta and are themselves arranged according to the second part of the surname (St. Clair before St. Dennis). Names prefixed with Saint (spelled out) are arranged in regular alphabetical order.

Surnames beginning with prefix Van are arranged alphabetically under letter V.

Surnames containing the prefix Von or von are usually arranged alphabetically under letter V; any exceptions are noted by cross references (Von Kleinsmid, Rufus Bernhard; see Kleinsmid, Rufus Bernard von).

The five specific practices last above mentioned, which differ from the procedures followed by many reference centers and publishing organizations have been adapted in the belief that every day use of a biographical compilation is as a result facilitated.

Compound hyphenated surnames are arranged according to the first member of the compound.

Compound unhyphenated surnames common in Spanish are not separated and are treated as hyphenated names.

Since Chinese names have the family name first, they are so arranged, but without comma between family name and given name (as Lin Yutang).

Parentheses used in connection with a name indicate which part of the full name is usually deleted in common usage. Hence Abbott, W(illiam) Lewis indicates that the usual form of the given names is W. Lewis. In alphabetizing this type the parentheses are not considered. However if the name is recorded Abbott, (William) Lewis, signifying that the entire name William is not commonly used, the alphabetizing would be arranged as though the name were Abbott, Lewis.
